

Proposed Design Concept

The following interaction design concept represent an exploration into creating familiar user experiences for Data Devices with touchscreens. The design maintains the current information architecture currently employed across the Data Device portfolio. In addition, the interaction design concept allows for display adjustments of the content based on user preference.

